Annex furnishings top $62,000

BY ED LEPOMA

Spending for renovation, office furniture and equipment at the Hancock County Courthouse Annex has exceeded $62,000.

And, although concerned supervisors clamped a moratorium on further spending in April, last Monday they approved the purchase of a $360 laser jet printer for County Prosecutor John Genin.

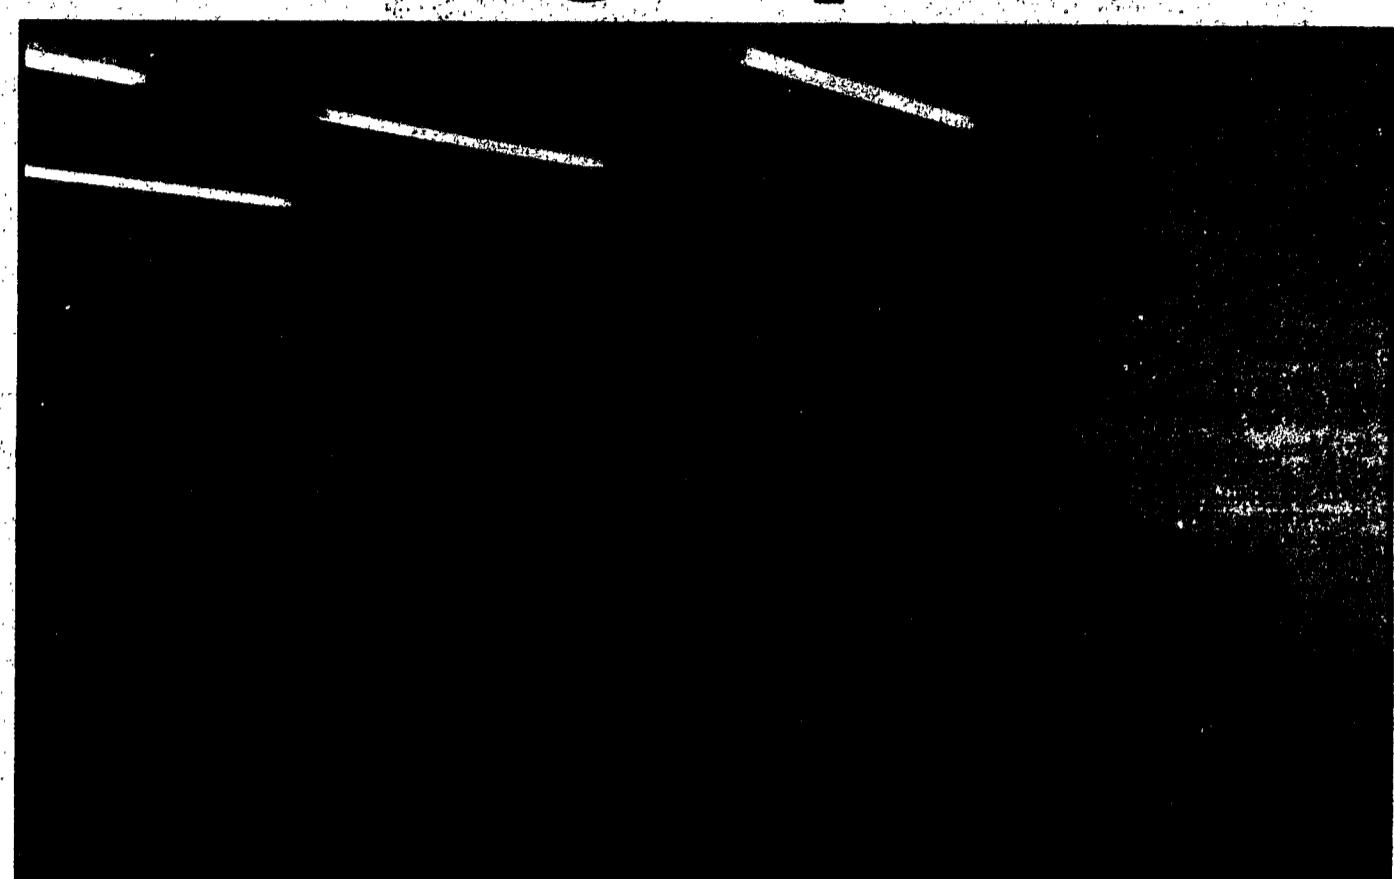

County Administrator Tim Kellar said Genin had already purchased a computer for $1,227, but didn't buy the printer to go with it.

Supervisors plan to finance expenditures at the Court Annex and for the purchase of the building off Hwy. 90 by reactivating the Hancock County Public Improvement Corporation.

County Attorney Gerald Gex said local banks would be asked on July 22 to submit bids on interest rates they would charge so the county can borrow as much as $64,000 for furnishing and equipping the annex, and another $520,000 for purchasing the 10,000-square foot building from brothers C.C. and Dave McDonald.

County Comptroller Patty Greer said expenditures as of

Ship Island tourist 'secret'

BY ED LEPOMA

The brochures call it the best kept secret in Mississippi, but locals and tourists who cruise daily to Ship Island consistently rate the experience as a top attraction.

That's especially true when you sail on a ship piloted by any member of the Skrmetta family, which has been shuttling visitors out to the barrier island in the northeastern Gulf of Mexico since the mid 1930's.

Last Sunday, myself and two friends boarded the sleek Gulf Islander for the one-hour cruise to West Ship Island. Capt. Louis, a third-generation Skrmetta, was at the helm of the 350-passenger, all aluminum craft.

Louis explains his grandfather, Peter (Martin) Skrmetta,

Favre pleads for new hearing

BY BETSY GAGNET

Scott Favre's attorney, Joe Sam Owen, has filed a new motion in Harrison County Circuit Court.

According to Owen, the motion requests a hearing to determine if Favre's constitutional rights were violated by the previous denial of a hearing on the revocation of Favre's house arrest and to determine if Favre's continued custody is unconstitutional.

In March, Favre pleaded guilty to felony DUI causing death and was sentenced to 15 years in prison, with 14 suspended, one year to be served and two years probation. The one year was to be served under house arrest.

Teens at work for Habitat

BY BETSY GAGNET

Last week a group of teenagers got together, braved the heat, and built a house for someone they didn't even know.

There were no cross words and no complaining, just a great group of kids doing a very nice thing for someone who needed the help.

It was all part of Habitat for Humanity (Habitat), a non-profit, ecumenical Christian housing ministry which gathers volunteers to build homes for families in need of better housing, and it has come to Harrison County.

All week, young volunteers, including five from the Salvation Army church in Gulfport, and nine from the Evangelical Community Church in Jackson, Tennessee, joined forces to frame a Habitat house in Pass Christian.

The head of the group from Tennessee was Randy Pierson, Youth and Worship Pastor for the church.

"I'm a former building contractor and had a company during college and the seminary,"

Charges dropped

Charges of simple assault and disorderly conduct were dropped Wednesday before former Ward 3 Councilman Tom Favre was due in court.

Cpl. Travis Foreman of the Bay St. Louis police department said he decided to drop the charges against Favre because of his recent re-election defeat and because he felt it was in the city's best interest.

The charges stemmed from Favre's intervention in a dispute outside the Valencia C. Jones complex in mid-March.

Favre said he was glad the issue was over, but he was prepared to go to court and prove his innocence.

Record broken in library's Summer Reading Program

More children than ever participated in this year's Summer Reading Program, sponsored by the Hancock County Library System. This year's theme was "Fantasy Quest."

"This was another record year for the library system," said David Woodburn, library public service coordinator. "Last year, we broke the previous year's numbers, but this year has set all new records. And circulation records continue to be broken each month. During the month of June, we checked out more than 23,000 items, bringing our total thus far for this fiscal year to 146,525, a 16 percent increase over last year."

A total of 780 children registered for the 1997 Summer Reading Program at all three branches, an overall increase of 6.2 percent over last year's registrations. They read 14,170 books in five weeks, or 24 percent more than last year's figure of 11,449. That means each child read an average of 18 books during the five-week program.

The Kiln Library registered 133 children this year, compared to 107 in 1996. These children read 1,350 books. Attendance at the programs was 438, a 44 percent increase over attendance last year. More than 100 children received completion certificates.

At the Waveland Library Literacy Center, 82 children registered a 58.6 percent increase over last year's registrations. These children read 521 books. Attendance was 410, reflecting a 56.4 percent increase over 1996. And 60 children received completion certificates.

The Bay St. Louis-Hancock County Library registered a total of 555 children, who read 10,295 books. A total of 1,541 people attended the programs, and 300 certificates were presented.

Programs included the Walter the Giant Storyteller, Joe

Caccioppo the Magician, Welcome to Bayou Town puppet show, and much more. Prizes donated by various businesses and organizations were distributed at each program. The grand prize winners:

Summer Reading Program participants who have not received their certificate of completion and goodie bag are urged to visit the library branch where they registered and pick them up.

Further information is available by calling the Kiln Library at 255-1724; Waveland Library Literacy Center, 467-9240; or the Bay St. Louis Library at 467-5282.

And we appreciate the tutors, who spent their time in a one-on-one basis to provide students with the guidance they needed."

It seems that it is once again time for me to get out one of my favorite pieces of advice and wisdom.

There is no consideration under way or necessary to, and it can cause headlight to be dimmed or become stones.

Motorists need to turn their vehicle lights on, and check to make sure their headlights and their tail lights are working properly.

At night, motorists should have their lights on to spot vehicles with a headlight problem.

I realize there are many drivers who take pride in their cars and their headlights. Turn on your lighting on their vehicles. Head on to them.

The safety of motorists is very important to the concern of many of us.

The time is now to mark your calendars for the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce's Business After Hours set for Thursday evening.

Hancock Medical Center is the sponsor, and the Business After Hours will be held at HMC's new Business and Education Center on the east side of the medical.

It will also be the introduction of Charles P. Kergosien, M.D., internal medicine, who will practice with James Crittenton, M.D.

Dr. Kergosien has Bay St. Louis roots that go back to his grandfather Charles Kergosien of Bay St. Louis. He is a native of Hazelhurst and has many Hancock County relatives.

It is my understanding that there will be a lot of good snacks for those attending.

The time is 6 to 7 p.m. and admission is two business cards.

Chamber members and guests are all invited and urged to attend.

I hope to see you Thursday at the Business After Hours.

The Hyman Sterlings of Bay St. Louis were thrilled to receive a 50th anniversary card from President Clinton.

In today's fast world there are not too many folks who celebrate tenth anniversaries, much less fifties.

Congratulations again to the Sterlings on their 50th wedding anniversary.

When can a wheelchair grow from an Oba-Lite Plant?

When Mississippi State University engineering students find a unique way to use the acrylic fibers made from hemp, an oblate plant native to Africa. These biological engineering students designed and built a prototype sports wheelchair made with plant products. Using hemp instead of fiberglass as a strengthening fiber, they proved that a biological product can be used successfully in the construction of biomedical equipment. Just another way Mississippi Universities are making sure we know more.

Veterans Affairs Office

Facts about the Department of Veterans Affairs

The Department of Veterans Affairs (VA) was established as a Cabinet-level position March 5, 1980.

The veterans population is estimated at 26 million. With nearly 80 of every 100 living veterans having served during defined periods of armed hostilities, those 20 million wartime veterans account for 51 percent of all Americans who ever served in wartime.

Altogether, almost one-third of the nation's population — approximately 70 million persons who are veterans, dependents and survivors of deceased veterans — are potentially eligible for VA benefits and services.

The VA is the largest independent agency in the Federal Government. It ranks second in the Department of Defense in number of personnel with 215,432. Approximately one out of every eight employees of the Federal Government's full-time permanent work force is employed by VA.

Of the total number of VA employees, 192,970 are in the Veterans Health Administration, 11,943 in the Veterans Benefits Administration, 1,375 in the National Cemetery System and 3,200 in the Veterans Canteen Service. The remainder — 5,944 employees — are in various staff offices. Fifty-five percent of VA employees are women.

The VA is the leader in hiring veterans. Some 53 percent of all male employees are veterans, and 7,049 of these are women veterans. Sixty-nine percent of male veterans and 52 percent of female veteran employees served during the Vietnam Era. Five percent of all VA employees are disabled veterans.

The VA's annual budget is over $40 billion and it:

1. operates the largest health care delivery system in the free world with 173 medical centers, 398 outpatient clinics, 133 nursing home care units, 40 dormitories and 205 readjustment-counseling centers;

2. administers the largest direct insurance program in the U.S.;

3. operates one of the Federal Government's major home loan guarantee programs;

The term "pension" is defined as a benefit paid monthly to veterans with service during a wartime period, who have a nonservice-connected disability, and who meet certain income limitations.

Dependency and Indemnity Compensation is a monthly payment to a surviving spouse, child or parent of veterans who died from:

1. a disease or injury incurred or aggravated while on active duty or active duty for training; or

2. an injury incurred or aggravated in line of duty while on inactive duty for training; or

3. a disability compensable by VA. Death cannot be the result of willful misconduct.

Mississippi Economic Council

Not everything wrong with education

It puts things in perspective.

Annually nearly 900 of the state's top students, teachers and their parents trek to the Mississippi Economic Council's Education Celebration to spend few hours receiving salutes, awards and scholarships.

This year on April 11 they'll jam an auditorium at Mississippi College in Clinton. This isn't a field trip with kids and chaperones loaded on big yellow busses, singing songs and taking a break from classes.

These are students who have been chosen as the top achievers in their schools. They're bright, articulate and well mannered.

There are STAR Students and Teachers. Students were chosen strictly on their academic achievements. The students chose the teachers they wanted to honor.

There are the finalists in the "Turn on the Light" essay contest who are defending their ideas of how to help Mississippi reach its potential. The ideas were worthy of study by the Legislature.

Winning teams from the Stock Market Game can compare notes on how they took a mythical $100,000 and bought and sold stocks over a 10-week period to amass huge financial gains. The winning team had a $110,949 profit. Did any stock broker do as good a job?

Don't forget the four teachers who are joining the STAR Teacher Hall of Fame. Induction is limited to teachers who have been named a STAR Teacher at least 10 times. There are 29 enrolled.

And don't overlook the proud parents sitting and applauding who have helped their children become the achievers they are. They deserve applause themselves.

College officials drift in and out of the celebration as their schedules permit. As one faculty member said while watching last year's event, "We spend a lot of time talking and focusing on what's wrong with education, but sometimes we need to step back and realize not everything is wrong. There's some good out there, also."

FOOD for thought

Eighty percent of a child's brain development occurs between birth and age 5. Physically a child is growing or developing well into his or her teen or early adulthood years. This is a very significant factor if you consider the fact that we provide children can make all the difference to their health and welfare.

Studies show there is a clear link between behavior and the food children eat. Junk food with added food colorings, flavors and little nutritional value are contributing to the declining health of our children.

With so much at stake, isn't it worth learning to feed children right? Take time to look at the food choices you have in your home. Are there more sweets, junk food and soft drinks than fruits, vegetables, whole milk, cheese or breads and cereals?

Our homes used to be just like that. Then it became obvious that many of the fast food choices we were providing for our family were really not the best choice.

I know many families are busy, but with a little effort, a lot of thought and some good old-fashioned role modeling many of the children in America can learn to eat properly.

It really doesn't matter where you start, perhaps start with the basic food groups. Look on any of the healthy cereal boxes, you will most likely find a food guide pyramid on one of them. Evaluate where you and your children stand. I would guess most of us are not eating as best we can.

This would be all right if it was just your own health you were responsible for. As parents and as a society we have to educate our children about the values of eating properly and its benefit.

If you were already thinking of changing some of the food choices in your home, or if you are, how do you go about doing so? I don't recommend you go cold turkey. If your diet consists of lots of fast food restaurant choices, cookies, ice cream, chips, etc., then make a slow and careful change. One of the best and easiest choices to start with is what your family buys to drink.

What kind of milk do you have in your home, whole milk? Did you know whole milk has 8% fat? Is it better to drink skim or 1% milk? Perhaps next time you shop, buy 2% milk. With some kids this change is best kept quiet, they just don't accept changes in their diet easily, or maybe it's mom or dad that is resistant to the change.

I'll let you in on a secret. If they don't know you are doing this, maybe you can sneak it by. I have even resorted to cleaning out the whole milk container and refilling it with 2% milk. I didn't tell my family I was doing this of course. They never knew the difference.

When I broke it to them, they were surprised, but they admitted it really wasn't too much different. Then we slowly went to 1%. That's as low as I can get them to accept, but hey, it's a long way from all the fat in whole milk.

Now if you have children under one year old, they should not be on any milk product other than breast or formula. Once they reach that first birthday, start them out with whole milk. Their brain development needs whole milk fat, and when they turn two you can change to 2% milk.

Never, never water down formula for children. This reduces the caloric intake and the quality of the milk. A child will suffer greatly in the coming years due to this practice.

You may not notice it right away, but in the school years some cases of learning difficulties can be traced to watering down of formula.

Another suggestion is to get everyone involved in the changes. Have a meeting with everyone in your home. Talk about the food guide pyramid, discuss the current state of the food options in your home and ask the family for suggestions to improve the overall health of your family.

That's what you will do, improve the health, strength and future of your family through the food you provide.

Many parents are willing to provide their children with healthy eating. If you are, then the future of your family may have a brighter future.

Many children today are overweight and this leads to early health problems like high blood pressure, heart problems and cancer. I don't know one parent who wants to lead their children down a path of health problems, but that is what is happening when we provide junk in our home.

We set up a habit, a thoughtless habit of poor-eating, and then if no one makes the change it just keeps on going (kind of like the Energizer Bunny). Through generations and through our efforts we can try to stop some of these terrible links to heart problems and cancer. No, not all of them are linked to the foods we eat, buy many are.

Cooking is a great way to change the diet. By buying the new reduced fat, lower calorie items you can still cook the old favorites but they are much healthier for the family. Some of the labels claiming reduced fat are high in sugar, so be cautious. Labels are a great asset to us. Find the nutrition label on some of the items in your home or at the grocery store. Do you know what they mean? Some of them are difficult to read, but with time you can figure out a quick criteria to evaluate them.

Check the serving size, how many of the items make one serving? That's important. Some small items we might think qualify as one serving can add up to two or more. Next look at the calorie/fat count. Is it loaded with calories and fat? We need calories and fat every day, we couldn't live without them, but it's the values and amount that we need to change many times.

Fat comes in two forms: saturated (a non-no!) and unsaturated (good choice!). Actually, unsaturated comes in mono and polyunsaturated, but both of them are better for you than saturated. Keep the fat content low, as low as possible.

Another key is the sugar content. How much sugar is in the food? If the sugar content is high, is that because it's a natural sugar or a refined man-made sugar? Check the ingredients list to find out if it has sugar, fructose, sucrose, corn syrup listed. The other key is in the sugary drinks kids get. If it says fruit drink, fruit punch or something similar, it probably is mostly sugar.

Try to buy 100% juice for the kids. The cost is not all that different and it really does taste just as good. The kids won't notice.

There is so much to learn about food choices. I really wanted to encourage you to start looking at the types of food you have in your home, the choices you make, and to support the idea that learning as much about healthy food choices as possible is one of the best things you can do for your family.

Start out with a plan that spells success, and then make it bigger and bigger until you have reached the goal of Quality Food Choices.

The kids just might get better grades, they may even be better, and you could be starting a trend that generations to come will benefit from. Take good care of one another.

Soultier new tennis coach at Pearl River

Camille Soulier, 42, Hattiesburg native, has joined Pearl River Community College's new tennis program replacing Dr. Chris Lundy who resigned the position in February 1997.

According to PRCC Athletic Director Keith Daniels,

Soulier, 42, has 24 years of teaching and coaching tennis following a stellar collegiate career at McNeese State University in her native Lake Charles, La.

She has since competed on the amateur level and has achieved national rankings in both women's singles and doubles.

Lundy is an academic counselor at PRCC and headed the tennis program's revival last spring after an eight-year lapse in competition. He will remain at PRCC as a counselor.

Daniels lauded Lundy's efforts and Soulier's expertise.

"Coach Lundy did a great job," Daniels said. "He accomplished a lot in a very short time. And we're very fortunate to be able to add someone to our athletic staff who has as much expertise and experience as Coach Soulier. Her reputation alone on the tennis court will add a great deal of credibility to our tennis program and the school in general."

While at McNeese, Soulier was named her team's Most Valuable Player for all three seasons (1977, 1978 and 1979). She competed and finished her senior year ranked 19th nationally in Division 1A singles competition. She earned her master's degree at the University of Southern Mississippi in Hattiesburg.

Her freshman year at McNeese saw her absent from competition as the Lake Charles university didn't have a women's program at that time.

Peggy Lamb Dutton graduated cum laude with a juris doctor degree from the University of Mississippi School of Law May 11.

men's tennis team until her sophomore year. During her freshman year, she made a brief return to her alma mater — St. Louis High School in Lake Charles — to coach the school's tennis team on a volunteer basis.

In high school, Soulier was the only player on the St. Louis women's team and won the state singles title.

Since her college graduation, she has served stints as pro at the Lake Charles Racket Club and the Lake Charles Country Club, as well as serving as a USTA (United States Tennis Association) clinician where she conducted seminars for teachers and professionals across the nation, including the semi-annual National Tennis Teachers Conference held in New York, N.Y.

As an amateur today, she is currently ranked No. 29 nationally in their 35-45 age division in women's singles and No. 10 in women's doubles along with her partner Jane Kuo of Houma, La. In the nine-state Southern Region, Soulier and Kuo are ranked No. 5, while she is No. 4 in singles competition.

Soulier lauds the southeastern United States as having the best tennis players in the nation.

"You can look at the national standings. The top three players in the South are always in the top five nationally," she said.

Soulier, who is single, was named the Mississippi Tennis Association's Female Player of the Year in 1995 and has represented Mississippi the last four years in the Southern Senior Cup played annually at Columbus, Ga. She was captain of the Magnolia State's team last year.

Camille Soulier

Soulier says she was attracted to PRCC's small town setting and personal approach.

"I really don't care for the big school environment. I've been there already. Oftentimes you're more of a number than an individual," she said. "Pearl River's setting and personal approach will result in a great marriage between the school and I."

Soulier said Lundy's recruits who return next spring will provide a solid nucleus for a team that will enter its second season after an eight-year hiatus from community college competition.

"Dr. Lundy did a great job recruiting last year and he did it without any facilities to speak of at the time," Soulier said.

"The school's new facilities are great and will make recruiting a lot easier. I compliment Dr. Lundy and the school's administrators for a job well done."

Soulier will be teaching tennis lessons for players age 7 through adult this summer starting July 8. Registration for classes is set for July 7.

Retirement age could raise

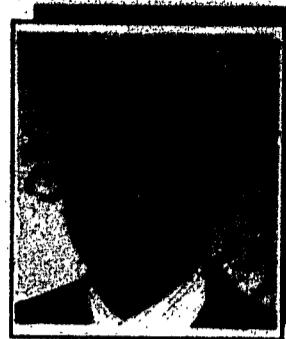

(Editor's note: First of a two-part series on Social Security)

Mention the words "Social Security," and you're likely to spark a debate. Younger people say they're tired of paying into a system that won't benefit them; older people say they've spent many years paying into Social Security, too, and they couldn't live without it.

Individuals aren't the only ones arguing about Social Security. This popular entitlement program continues to make news as legislators debate its future health.

Although no laws have been passed, one of the most agreed-upon solutions is to raise the retirement age. Today's laws are the same as they were in 1935 when Social Security was signed into law: retirees are eligible for full retirement benefits at age 65 or reduced benefits as early as age 62. Interestingly, though, in 1935, Americans had a life expectancy of only 61.9 years.

In other words, a system

was put into place that had the expectation of paying out little or no benefits to half of all workers who paid into the system. During the past 62 years, improvements in medicine, lifestyle, nutrition, transportation, communication, working conditions and other technologies have driven the average life expectancy from 61.9 years to 76 years — an increase of more than 14 years, or nearly 23 percent.

With the average retiree receiving benefits of more than $7,900 in 1996, and expected to live 11 years past retirement age, the 33 million retired Americans today are scheduled to draw much more from Social Security than the system was designed for. And if you consider that 83 percent of retirees start drawing benefits before age 65, the cumulative costs are even higher.

Proponents of raising the retirement age to 70, with reduced benefits available as early as age 65, say that doing so is logical given our longer life expectancies. They add that phasing in these higher age limits over the next 10 years would be fair to workers within two to three years of retirement and provide adequate transition time to save and plan. And it still would allow the average worker to enjoy a longer retirement than was originally planned when Social Security was signed into law.

It's important to understand that the Social Security Trust Fund is healthy today. Incoming tax revenues will continue to exceed outgoing payments until 2012. After 2012, however, Social Security trustees will be forced to supplement payments with interest and principal that have been accumulating in the Trust Fund. Today's projections indicate that, with no change in the laws, the Social Security Trust Fund will be bankrupt by 2030.

Experts say that raising the retirement age would postpone this bankruptcy far beyond 2030 and provide hope that the children and grandchildren of today's retirees will be able to receive benefits from the system they paid into over their entire working careers.

Laser project survives Senate roll call vote

BY ED LEPOMA

The nation's Space-based Laser demonstration program, a potential project for Hancock County's Stennis Space Center, is still alive, despite recent attempts in the U.S. Senate to kill it.

U.S. Sen. Trent Lott was among senators who managed to defeat an amendment by Sen. John Bingaman, D-NM, to delete funding for the program from the 1998 Senate Authorization Act. The Senate on Friday killed Bingaman's amendment on a 43-56 roll call vote.

Next year's spending would authorize $148 million for the project, which potentially would cost $1.5 billion and employ as many as 700 people. Stennis is one of five sites now being considered to house this project.

During debate on the Senate floor, Lott, the Senate's majority leader, argued that the Space-based Laser is necessary to the future safety of this nation because it would provide a laser network in orbit, which would shoot down ballistic missiles in the boost-phase of launch.

"Space-based Laser offers potentially one of the most effective responses to the ballistic missile threat, utilizing mature technologies for boost-phase interception," said Lott.

"Not only does this capability provide a protective blanket, but it also serves as a strong deterrent against even launching attack missiles aimed at the United States," he said.

New fees for the Seashore

Superintendent Jerry Eu-banks announced that Gulf Islands National Seashore has been approved for participation in the new Recreation Fee Demonstration Program administered by the National Park Service (NPS).

The Seashore is one of 100 allowed demonstration sites, parks or projects to implement demonstration fees.

Effective July 15 the Seashore will implement its new fee structure for the Annual Park Pass and entrance fees into the Fort Pickens and Perdido Key areas.

The Annual Park Pass will be $15 for a 12-month period from the date of purchase and increasing to $20 effective Jan. 1, 1998. All previously issued passes with a valid date stamp will be honored until expiration.

The entrance fee for Fort Pickens and Perdido Key areas will be $6 for entry of a single, private, non-commercial vehicle and all its passengers and $3 per person for entry of a visitor by means other than a single, private, non-commercial vehicle, (e.g., pedestrian, bicycle, motorcycle, motor scooter, moped).

The new fees will be used for bike trails, upgrade campground restrooms, lifeguards, fort preservation, interpretive programs, upgrade sewage systems and nature trails.

New fees can also be used for roads and buildings; improve signs and exhibits; educational programs, guided walks and hikes, and other visitor activities; natural habitat protection, stabilization and restoration of historic structures; and visitor safety and protection.

The Seashore will be evaluating the feasibility of new fees for other areas and activities of the park (e.g., the Day Use area between Pensacola Beach and Navarre Beach and the Okaloosa Area in Fort Walton Beach, both in the Florida District; Ship Island in the Mississippi District; and the districts' interpretive programs).

"The popularity of our national treasures continue to climb. Protecting our natural and cultural heritage while ensuring that everyone visiting NPS areas has a safe, enjoyable and educational experience costs money. The price we are willing to pay today will determine the condition of our national treasures to be passed on to future generations," Eu-banks concluded. "We need and welcome the public's support," he added.

Choose cool styles, fabrics for summer

By Motra Brodnax
MSU Ag Communications

Mississippi's hot, humid days are likely to continue well into the fall, but knowing how to dress appropriately can make the heat more bearable.

Fiber content, fabric construction, garment design and color are all elements which will affect how cool a piece of clothing will be.

Dr. Evelyn Johnson, extension apparel and textiles specialist at Mississippi State University, said natural fibers such as cotton, linen and ramie are cooler because they have high absorption power and will dry quickly.

"Natural fibers love moisture, so they will absorb sweat and dry quickly to help reduce body heat," Johnson said. "Synthetic materials do not absorb moisture well and will trap moisture next to the body, causing less ventilation through the garment and greater discomfort."

Lightweight fabrics with an open-weave or open-knit construction allow for the flow of air through the garment, which will keep the body cooler, Johnson added.

Chambray, muslin, gauze, challis, mesh, cotton jersey and single knits are ideal lightweight fabrics for a hot day. Garment design also plays a role in reducing body heat. Loose fitting clothes will allow body heat to escape and air to circulate.

"Cool garment design choices include large necks, armholes and legs; unlined garments; pants that do not require a belt; straight legged pants; and shirts and blouses worn untucked," Johnson said.

Color affects how warm or cool a garment will be when worn outside in the sun. White and light colors will reflect the light and heat away from the body, while dark colors will absorb the heat and feel much warmer on the body.

"A light-colored, loose fitting open-knit cotton outfit will be your best bet on a hot day in the sun," Johnson said.

Make special considerations when laundering summer garments, which have additional odors and moisture. Ammonia or detergents with odor-eating agents can be added to the wash load to remove odors.

"Never put clothes that are moist from perspiration, water or other liquids in the hamper because mildew will grow on the garments," Johnson said. "Exposure to light and air will kill mildew from forming."

If mildew forms, chlorine can be added to the wash if it is safe for the fabrics involved. All-fabric bleach can be used, if chlorine is not good for the fabric, but it will take longer to eliminate mildew.

Garment design also plays a role in reducing body heat. Loose fitting clothes will allow

Teach children to value animals

Learning how to treat animals is an important step in a child's educational process.

Tom Miller, owner of Sunshine Farms in Noxubee County, said allowing children the opportunity to interact with various animals is beneficial academically and socially.

"We want children to learn how to love and respect animals. If they learn that at an early age, they will have learned how to love and respect human beings," Miller said.

Sunshine Farms is among a small number of recreational farms that are becoming popular among school and day-care groups. Visitors have the opportunity to see traditional farm animals as well as exotic and nontraditional species.

"Children can learn many of life's lessons from animals. These include how to be responsible and how to love and be loved," Davis said. "Some of those lessons of life can be painful, like dealing with disappointment and death."

Davis said adults should carefully expose their children to animals, especially on first encounters.

"Both the young child and the animal can be at risk of being hurt. Children need to be taught to be cautious and gentle," she said.

Miller said parents often are more excited about a child's first encounter with an animal than the child is. Adults should help children overcome their fears slowly — at each child's pace.

"Encourage, but don't insist, that children interact with animals," Miller said. "By taking their time, children can establish relationships that will last the animal's lifetime."

After carefully selecting a pet for a child, Davis said parents should have realistic expectations for that child's ability to care for the animal.

"Children under age 8 have no concept of time. They may not fully realize the importance of daily care," Davis said.

"Children have trouble understanding abstract concepts like 'taking care' of the animal. Give them specific directions and daily check lists to make sure they fulfill their duties."

Davis said caring for an animal can teach responsibility without it being a burden. When a child begins to resent an animal, parents may need to step in and find an alternative for the pet's care.

The pain of a traumatic injury to the neck or lower spine rarely just goes away by itself. Even worse, the pain may worsen or develop complications.

If you are injured in a car or other accident, your pain may be relieved with gentle, natural chiropractic treatment. And today, most accident insurance covers chiropractic care.

The "WORD" for the Week

Dennis J. Prutow, Box 303, Sterling, KS 67570

Do you yearn for a new start in life? The new birth is a new start. Jesus told Nicodemus, a religious teacher, "You must be born again" (John 3:7). Nicodemus should have known God's promise, "I will give you a new heart and put a new spirit in you" (Ezekiel 36:26).

Jesus said Nicodemus needed a new start with a new heart. This meant at least three things. First, his attitude toward life needed to be changed.

Nicodemus needed a spiritual rebirth that would alter how he thought about God and about himself. Second, his emotions needed to be bridled. Nicodemus needed a spiritual rebirth that would give him a good dose of old fashioned self-control. Third, Nicodemus needed a spiritual rebirth to motivate him to actually turn away from selfishness to a life of service. All of this combined would give Nicodemus a new beginning.

This is spiritual rebirth. God gives you a new heart. You turn

Sometimes we may not realize how important and needed we may be to others. This may be due in part, to the constant attacks upon us with rejections and negative statements. Also, because people die and appear to be replaced seemingly overnight, this contributes to this false assumption that we do not matter. Each one of us was created in a unique manner, and for specific reasons that are important to God, our families, and our friends. God is concerned with each of us, and He wants us to take care of ourselves and be the best that we can be. The Bible tells us that God counts the hairs on our head; if He is aware of the hair on our head, we can be assured that He is concerned with all aspects of our lives. As we grow closer to God, we become more aware of how much He loves and cares for us. For only a penny you can buy two sparrows, yet not one sparrow falls to the ground without your Father's consent. As for you, even the hairs on your head have all been counted. So do not be afraid; you are worth much more than many sparrows! Good News Bible Matthew 10:29-30

Diamondhead Garden Club

Garden of the Month awards go to:

Garden of the Month: Diane and Jim Israel, 96456 Diamondhead Drive West

Golf Course Garden: Louann and Rick Watts, 221 Highpoint Drive, #18 Cardinal

Commercial Award: Rehab One Inc., 4550 Shepherd Square

If that last address seems vaguely familiar, you have probably seen the sign for Shepherd Square while on a trip to the Diamondhead Market. Take a few extra minutes the next time you pick up some milk and take the road less travelled. It's a hidden pleasure.

Diamondhead will soon be designated a historic site. The Garden Clubs of Mississippi will place a marker here noting the travels of 18th century naturalist William Bartram. Bartram explored waterways in southern Louisiana and Mississippi, and was in the area in 1776. He wrote in his journals of "passing the beautiful Bay of St. Louis, into which flowed many beautiful rivers from lands of the Choctaws." The marker will be installed south of LID near the yacht club.

Three new garden club members were accepted at the June 3 board meeting. Club members welcome Stephanie Griggs, Betty O'Toole and Elease Willins.

The newly-elected officers and committee chairmen are putting together what they hope will be interesting programs and activities for the coming year.

Club members meet again in September.
